Excerpt: . . . punish the offenders, was fearfully summary. Tbr whole of the ChapelgorrU were this morning marched a few miles on the Miranda road, and, without being in the slightest degree aware of what was in preparation, were ordered to ascend a rising ground, --the same where the French batteries were planted which did so much execution during the advance upon Villora by Lord Wellingtons army. Here they found a body of OOO infantry, the bone artillery which had preceded them from Vittoria, and a considerable number of cavalry, already drawn up. Having completed thr ascent, they were halted, and ordered to pile their arms, from which they were commanded to move some distance. The cavalry now rod up between the Cbapelgorri and their muitkpu, orming a guard to the latter. Then, bir the first time, the poor fellows began to form a suspicion of what...
